

Pupils' personal development is catered for well. Pupils told us about the school's values. Understanding these is helping them to be tolerant and treat others with respect. The changes to the curriculum are making pupils take greater interest in their learning and responsibility for their actions. This has improved pupils' attendance and transformed their behaviour. Staff have created a safe and calm culture. Pupils respond well and have very positive attitudes to school. Pupils with particular needs receive specific support to help them.

Following a turbulent period in the school's staffing, the trust has now secured a stable and committed team. Leaders are ambitious about pupils' achievement. Pupils' behaviour has been transformed, and important improvements are being made to pupils' achievement. There has been a strong focus on improving pupils' attainment in reading, writing and mathematics. At the same time, leaders have made sure that pupils access a broad curriculum. There has been success in improving the standards pupils achieve in English and mathematics.
