Zephyr the wild wind has blown the sentences in the story all over and now they are in the wrong order. Write the sentences out again in the correct order to retell the story so far. Use the text maps from Wednesday and Thursday to help you.

One night Zephyr the wild wind rose up and loosened the rope that fastened Harry's boat.

One day Harry found an old teacup on the seashore "this will make a wonderful boat" said Harry.

Harry the harbour mouse lived in an old boathouse, on the winding river.

A HUGE gust of wind blew a bird's nest right out of a tree; out fell the eggs into the stormy water.

Harry's boat was smashed to smithereens!
